

Mrs. Martin's Newsletter

December 9th, 2016

lisa.martin@district196.org

651.683.6820

<http://mrsmartin302.weebly.com>

Literacy Update:

We are enjoying reading books written and illustrated by Kevin Henkes. We are noticing techniques and “crafts” that he uses. We are also writing a biography based on the many questions we have answered about him through our own research. I love how inquisitive this group is!

Math Update:

As we begin our second trimester, the focus will shift from measurement to another unit on place value. This unit will be more in depth as kids are expected to name, represent, add/subtract 10 and add/subtract 100 to any given number through 999. We will finish measurement next week with an assessment on Wednesday.

General information:

So impressed by the many books that are being read and written about from their take home book bags. Thanks, parents for your help and encouragement!

*So proud of how well the kids did last night. They were so excited!
Hope you enjoyed!*

