Literacy

updates:

Our current unit of study is Building Community. This week we have talked a lot about routines and expectations as well as being a respectful and responsible student in our classroom! We will continue this unit for the next 6 weeks as we get to know each other and create a classroom family. This is an amazing group to be with...I'm so lucky!

Math updates:

We are working on beginning math strategies and learning expectations for the math workshop model. Many things this week were a review, as we are truly working on building independence and knowing how to use many math tools in the classroom. We will continue learning these procedures through next week as we focus on being facile with number combinations through 10 and 20.

General
